IF YOU ARE NEW TO MSIA:

Soul Transcendence

The purpose of the Movement of Spiritual Inner Awareness (MSIA) is to teach Soul Transcendence, which is becoming aware of yourself as a Soul and as one with God, not as a theory but as a living reality. Your Soul is who you truly are; it is more than your body, your thoughts, or your feelings. It is the highest aspect of yourself, where you and God are one.

MSIA provides a variety of tools and techniques that allow you to experience your Soul and enhance your awareness of God.

Equally important, MSIA presents an approach that focuses on incorporating spirituality into your everyday life. We call this "practical spirituality." It allows you to attune more deeply to your Soul and to increasingly live from that awareness.

In MSIA, we respect any approach that encourages people on their path home to God. We don't claim to have the only way, but we do have a way that is assisting thousands of people to do this while experiencing greater health, happiness, abundance, and joy.

The foundation of MSIA is loving, and it is in that spirit that we invite you to participate with us in whatever way works for you.

If you would like more information about MSIA, or to further explore its teachings, please visit our website at www.msia.org or contact us at: 800/ 899-2665 or servicedesk@msia.org

INSIGHT  SEMINARS

ARE YOU GOING FOR PROGRESSION OR PERFECTION?

BY JOHN-ROGER, DSS

(From a J-R seminar at a meeting of the John-Roger Foundation staff in 1988.)

We were all trying to do things perfectly. The teachings of the organizations are based upon perfection, but that's something that we're probably not going to attain here. But if we don't have it out there far enough as an ideal, we won't even make an effort to go towards it.

Originally there were about four or five people running MSIA, and we had a lot of time on our hands, so I did a lot of seminars. Then other organizations started from similar beginnings, and they all spread around the world. Insight started out with three or four people, and so did PTS. The University of Santa Monica started out small as well, and it was originally called Koh-E-Nor while it was incubating for a few years. You make the announcement, put it in the Light, and then it incubates until the people that are part of that start coming in.

We were doing service all over the world, but the airlines kept charging us, the restaurants kept charging us, and the hotels kept charging us, so we had to start charging just to continue doing it. We found that it got bigger and bigger, so we had to charge more and more, and more people came in and they had to be paid. So we had to do more and more. Pretty soon this thing was just an ugly little beast—and as you know, all organizations are beasts. I don't mean that negatively. It's just like saying that light's on. That's not saying it's negative, it's just saying what it is.

We tried to set up all the organizations so you can at least cuddle up to them. And we know that in the moment of cuddling, you're going to get nipped or scratched as the beast moves, because it won't know you're there. Even in the NOW Productions video crew, you'd be amazed at how many people got their feelings hurt because somebody pushed a camera in the wrong spot and they got told about how wrong it was. Then they decided they didn't want to move the cameras because they didn't want to move them to wrong places. So I did a seminar saying, "making mistakes is part of growth," and people started to move cameras again.

We were all trying to do things perfectly. The teachings of the organizations are based upon perfection, but that's something that we're probably not going to attain here. But if we don't have it out there far enough as an ideal, we won't even make an effort to go towards it. And without that effort, we might just as well go out and put on a tin bill and pick manure with the chickens, because our life becomes based on animal instincts of survival.

We looked at it all and said, "Well, there's nothing wrong with having a magnificent teaching, a magnificent Insight, a magnificent University. We're all going to fall short, but let's do it anyway." We'd get involved in the organizations, we'd start working and we'd do things wrong. I don't know how to run organizations.

I've been learning along with everybody else, and some people were better at it than I am. It was amazing that in the process of getting to where we were going we had to overcome statements such as, "Well, you're not living up to Insight. You're not living up to USM. You're not living up to ..." And we would say, "Of course not."

As soon as you can live up to something you have to put the measure out further. This is why we make things difficult for ourselves. Just stop and look at it. Does anybody make it difficult for you, or do you make it difficult for you, with what other people give you or don't give you when you think you should have it? They'll ask, "Where's the report?" They think they should have it, and you don't have it yet. They're going to make you wrong in the next statement called, "Why not?" And then

Well, you're not living up to Insight. You're not living up to USM. You're not living up to ...
And we would say, "Of course not."

you'll say, "Well, you're making me wrong." I'm not making that light on. That light is on and I'm just saying the light's on. If they want to justify their existence by always feeling like they're being made wrong, that's called playing the supreme victim.

If I can moan about how wrong you're making me, I can re-victimize you back to make you feel bad about making me feel wrong, and now you're the victim. But you're in the position where you have to convey the information. We had fun with that. We have people in these organizations that are experts at taking some information and twisting it just enough so that you want to kill them, but you can't. And you want to love them, and you can't. You've got this tremendous love-hate relationship going with that person called, "God, I feel like I'm married. I can't live with you and I can't live without you." Then we ask, "Could you just get the report in? Could you just do your work?" And the answer is, "Of course not. We don't do things that way on the earth." Then we say, "Well at least let's keep pushing at it."

I was talking to a fellow who was a graduate from one of the big east coast schools. I said to him, "You know, one of the greatest criticisms I get directed at me is that I don't live up to the teachings." He said, "How can you?" I said, "Well, I don't know, how can I?" He said, "Nobody can live up to them, but you have to have a guiding light out there in order to see where you're going." I asked him the definition of a teacher. He said, "It's a shortcut to excellence."

The world does a very interesting thing to us. It meets us at the point of our agreement. If you agree to something the world will come and reflect it back to you. That's why we come together in groups on this planet, because what we agreed to as a group, the world gives to us. Now, here's the thing you've got to watch out for: If you agree to negativity the world is going to supply you the negativity. And it will supply you the reference points for the negativity, and give you all the evidence you need to be very negative.

Two people coming down the aisle to get married are having the same type of experience, but one has cold feet, and the other has a warm heart. The world is supplying exactly what they put out because one says, "It's cold in here," and the other says, "Gee, it's really warm." It's the same air.

Remember the story of the Little Prince? He said, "The sun will come up, the sun will go down," because that's what it's going to do anyway and he wanted his commands to be accurate and perfect. In these organizations, we can't do that. We have to go into the imperfections. The difficult thing in being a facilitator of any class, whether it's in religion, education, or healing, is that you have to leave your high position and come down to wherever that person has their bag of junk stuck, and grab the junk and pull it out. They're going to hang onto it, and you're going to go back and forth with them until they let go of it, and you're going to have their junk all over you. Then they're going to say, "You have junk on you," and your job is to clean it up and go for the next pile of it. I hear people saying, "I would like to be a facilitator," and I say, "Do you like to play in the junk?"

People don't want to win in negativity. They really want to win at the winning edge. We have a business consulting division in Insight and I was talking to some of the people who work there. A client said, "You people must be right on the cutting edge. How do you do that?" And the person from Insight said, "I don't know that we're on the cutting edge until we get past it and we look back and see that was the edge at that time, and we were on it." But when you're working, you don't know you're on the edge because you're pioneering and there are no reference points. So everywhere you look is really an opportunity for new creation and new growth.

Years and years ago two women worked with me—Pauli and Candace. I think I worked with them, but when push comes to shove, I worked for them because they would put me through the hoops often. They would come in and say, "We don't have any more room to stack boxes, papers, notebooks, etc." I'd look out there and there was no other room. I'd say, "Well, go back and reorganize." So they'd go back in and go through all the papers and get rid of a lot. They would come back and say, "We have some more space for a while."

And I'd go, "Whew." They'd come in later and say, "We're out of space again." So I'd go, "Reorganize it, restructure it, redo it." They'd go and come back and they'd say, "We have about an inch more space."

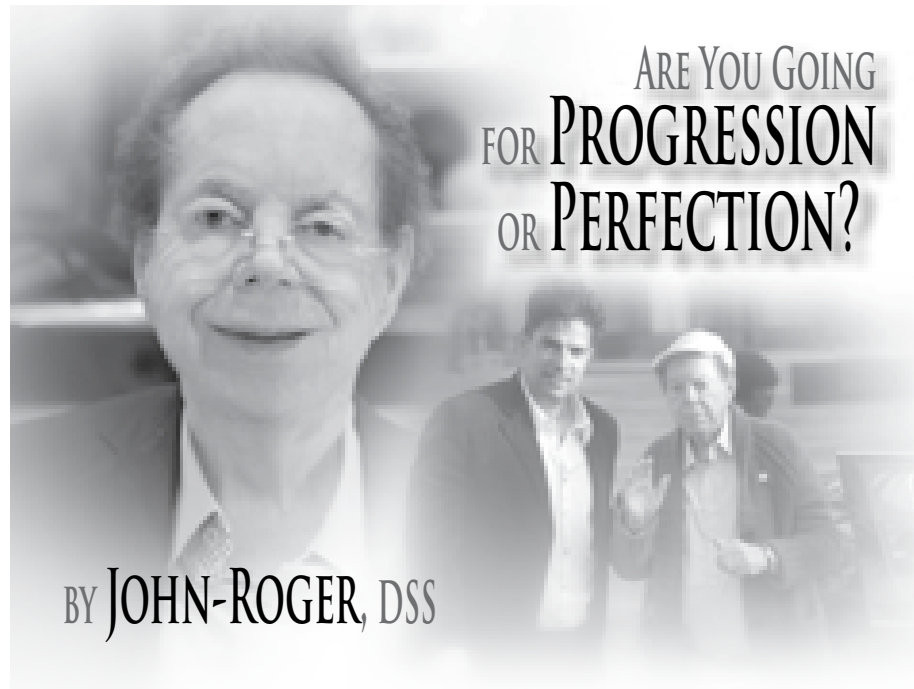

So we spilled over into another bedroom. And it wasn't long until they were coming up and saying, "We don't have enough room." There's a law that we'll occupy the amount of space and time available for something even if we don't need that space. If somebody gives it to us we will spread out into it. I thought, "What on earth are we doing? We were supposed to be a small group of non-committing people just meeting informally, loving and growing our way to God, and that's all we wanted to do. What's with all these papers and boxes and books, and these articles and magazines? Who ever wanted that? It wasn't me." I wanted to just go off and walk in the sand and follow the sun. I still do that. I'd like to do it more, and I will.

Finally, they came to me and said, "There is no more room in this house." The only room left was my bedroom, which was the last bastion. I thought, "What do I do here?" Then I thought, "Well, it's time for prayer." So I did the tradition. I got down on my knees by the bed. And it kind of hurt because I'd played basketball and fell and hurt my knees a lot, so to kneel on them was a terror. So I said, "Wait, God." And I got my pillow and put it on the floor and then put my knees on it, put my hands up on the bed, and I said, "Help. Thank you," and got back up again. I figured that if there was a God, He knew, and if He didn't know then least I'd give him the agenda ("Help") and then he could fill in the outline. It wasn't too long until Greg Stebbins called up and said, "Hey, we've got this place in Whittier, it's called the Light Castle and it has this big garage." It was bigger than two or three of the rooms in my house. I said, "We'll take it." I never look an angel in the mouth. I take the gift.

Pauli and Candace packed up what was in those few bedrooms, and went down to the big garage that was in the Light Castle, and they spread out all the papers and they filled the garage. I said, "Where did you get all this stuff to put in this garage? We didn't have that much." They said, "Well, there were a lot of papers that were stacked up and we couldn't get to them because it would take so long to unstack and stack it back up, so we just wouldn't do it." I thought, "Well, now that it's spread out, we'll get more done." But now they didn't know where things were. So I'd ask for some information that was in the papers, and they'd say, "When do you need it?" Then I knew we were in trouble. I'd say, "Well, at your earliest convenience, but the person asked me about it so now I'm asking you, and they never said when they needed it, but I'm sure it's important." I don't know if they ever did get their answers from the papers, but they got their answers.

Insight does something similar, and I'm amazed that more people don't use it. Do you remember the sanctuary in Insight? How many of you go into it to find out what's going on in your life, and in the Spirit life, and in the world around you? If you don't, you are missing what the sanctuary is about.

(Continuing)

Do you know that you can go in there and find out what's going on with yourself and other people? Do you remember that when you took Insight you had such a high accuracy rate with the information you got? You thought, "Wow, I can't believe that this inner communication is so extremely accurate. And I didn't even know these people." It scares you because you start to realize that in the unconscious there are no secrets.

So when somebody tells you something you can start to go into your sanctuary while you're

In Insight, everybody who comes in the room brings their own little bit that they contribute. And if we're bringing the very best that we possibly can at any given moment (and that may be very, very bad but it's the best you can bring at that moment), we realize that even as bad as it was, it was almost perfect, and it led to your progression.

It's important to understand the progressions in your life. If you don't understand them, you'll be stuck and you'll have information to beat yourself in the head, to abuse yourself and make yourself more of a victim.

looking at them and get the information for what you know is so—not what is "true," because you can't do truth on this planet. Down here information is empirical, and there are relative degrees of it. You get in and you start to process and find the information. And I'll tell you something very vital: the more you use the sanctuary the better it becomes, and the better you become so that you can be talking to somebody on the street and have your sanctuary working like a computer. They can be talking to you and you are just right there with it, not as a feeling, but as a knowing. When somebody says, "Well, I feel..." I almost think, "Well, that just slit our throats because feelings are running the world again today." And it gets equally bad when somebody says, "I know," and you know they don't know because you're in your sanctuary looking at theirs and there's nobody in their sanctuary.

In Insight, everybody who comes in the room brings their own little bit that they contribute. And if we're bringing the very best that we possibly can at any given moment (and that may be very, very bad but it's the best you can bring at that moment), we realize that even as bad as it was, it was almost perfect, and it led to your progression.

It's important to understand the progressions in your life. If you don't understand them, you'll be stuck and you'll have information to beat yourself in the head, to abuse yourself and make yourself more of a victim. I'll give you an example of one of the worst things that happened to me in this physical life to show you a progression.

My mother and father died a long time ago and I was extremely distraught. It was such a terrible thing, even though, in a way, I was working with them on other levels. But physically, although I hadn't been living at home for years, I had such a feeling of abandonment and betrayal. I felt like, "Why did you go die? Why did you die that way? You could have died of old age."

Many years have gone by and now I have two Rottweilers named Annie and Gork. They have been espoused for a long time but they never had any children. So finally we helped Gork figure out how to do it. And Annie was okay with that. About eight or ten days ago she had five puppies. If you've ever seen Rottweiler puppies they are so absolutely precious, you just can't believe it. Little black and brown things, and when they're eating their little feet stick out straight behind them, and you hear that sucking noise. We were sitting around the table and we heard something and I said, "Gee, that sounds like a baby cry." It was the puppies.

It was two o'clock in the morning, and it had been raining really hard. I was in a twilight sleep, and Gork came outside my bedroom door and banged on it. So I got Johnny and I said, "Hey, go see what that is." A few minutes later he came in my room and said, "Oh God, two of the puppies are dead." I asked, "What happened?" He said, "I think Lady killed them." Lady is our little white Bichon Frise. I thought, "Oh God," and I went in there.

I was very dizzy because I have a hard time getting up when I've been meditating and I'm away from the body. I got in there and looked at these puppies. There was Annie, and there was blood all over. I reached down and one of the puppies that our friend was going to get was dead. I thought, "How am I going to tell him that?" I looked over and there was another one that was breathing slowly. I picked it up and blew into its nose, and I got it back. I thought, "What on earth am I doing? It's dying. It's got a reason to die. Why am I interfering?" So we got hold of someone else at the house and said, "Let's take them to the vet." We put them in two boxes.

Annie was really upset—she's the female Rottweiler, a really great little mama. She's really special. I got back in bed and watched TV. About an hour later, John came back and he said, "Well, we lost all the puppies." I have been so sick because of that. And I saw that it's amazing that the tragedy of my mother and father dying, and all the things that have happened around me set me up to handle my puppies dying. This was an event we waited for, the timing was correct, and it was really set up perfectly, even though perfect things can't exist on the planet—which is a very difficult thing for people to understand.

So there's this little white Bichon named Lady that is probably the most lovable little creature in the world, with this mass of red blood down her face where she chewed up the little puppies. I called her in to see if she was okay. I rolled over, and I was so angry, I smacked her and sent her outside. As soon as I hit her, it sort of let go inside of me. I really felt like wringing her neck, except this is another dog that I love.

Now, here's the progression: I went into the feeling of the puppies dying, went back to my mother and father, grabbed hold of that emotion, brought it forward through time and space inside of me, hit what happened today and let the emotions come up. You notice that I let them go and I shared them with you. As they came up you probably were aghast at hearing it and felt shaken, but as it came up through me it matured. You might find it maturing inside of you. Healing for one is healing for many. I let it mature and now it's here inside of me, and it's still shaking me, but it's not running me.

How am I going to get over it? Maybe another batch of puppies, and I'll be just great. Probably, I'll go home tonight and go, "Ah, life is like that. It seems like somebody is getting killed or hurt inadvertently all the time." So what do I do now, do I go kill Lady? The little Bichon has been very much in disfavor around our house today. She knows it. She feels bad about it. People at the house were asking me, "J-R, what was this? Why did she do it? Was she jealous?" I said, "No. We have to understand where Lady's coming from. If you don't understand why she's here and what she's here to do, you can't understand her behavior, and why that behavior, in time and space, is going to be fine. If it's going to be fine in time and space it's got to start being fine right now."

We all learned a tremendous lesson: Don't let Lady near puppies. They've been known to kill their own puppies. These dogs are territorial. That means they own the space they're in and they will kill anything that gets in that space. That's why I have three big dogs with one little one, because she can't kill them. But she'll reach up and grab them by the ears and pull them down if she wants to talk to them.

Keep your eye on what you're doing. It's not difficult to watch what you're doing. Keep your mind on what you're doing as you do it. Know full well the way you're being treated now is exactly what you've put out to the world, and you've agreed to have it treat you that way. It's treating you in exact agreement to what you put out. If you put out love and joy and happiness, it's going to agree with you and give you that. If you put out hurt, animosity and despair, it will supply it to you.

The world is an inkblot. We have to realize that that's what it's doing or we're going to be lost in the confusion of everybody's inkblot perceptions. Can you rely just on your own experience? Only to a point—because you're going to go to a place where there are no reference points for your experience. You can read about how to make a pie, and that's not making a pie. But even after you've made the pie, some people can't eat it, so that's your experience. As you make the next few pies people will begin to eat them, and you'll correct as you learn and grow. And then, one day when you are the famous pie maker and everybody's got you up sky-high in the pie world, you'll make a bad piece of pie, and they're going to stick it to you, disregarding all the good pieces of pie you put out for centuries. Life is like that. If you don't expect it, you're not keeping your eyes on what you're doing and keeping your mind on where you're going.

Are we going to make those mistakes? I've got news for you—nobody really makes a mistake. It turns out that way as you go down the road. We don't start out and say, "I'm going to make this mistake. There it is. That's a mistake." We just go, "This is a really good thing to do, this will really work." We start into it and about five days later somebody says, "Here's why that doesn't work." You think, "God, what a mistake. I made a mistake." No you didn't. The mistake was out there because it wasn't being monitored as you went along. It happens when we take our abilities away from what we're doing. That thing shows up where it moves off course and all we do is just course correct.

Do you want to be allowed the privilege of correcting your course whenever you feel it's necessary? Then you've got to give that same privilege to everybody else. Do you know what you have to do as one of the first prerequisites of allowing them that? Forget and forgive what's happened, or else you have an irreparable relationship. The first step in mental health is to allow forgiveness for your dumbness and possibly somebody else's. But you can never forgive somebody else until you have the forgiveness inside of yourself. You'll say nice things and walk away with a grudge in your heart. You've got to clean yourself up.

Michael Jackson wrote a song that said if you want to change the world, change the person you're looking at in the mirror. Listen to that very carefully. We're hearing more and more songs that say if you want to change the world, go inside. Change where you live and it will start to reflect it in the world. The world will agree to it.

How is it that some people can have a lot to and others have nothing? It looks like they're doing the same thing, and then we judge it based on that. Folks, it is not the same thing. They came from a different place inside and did a different thing inside. Many of our experiences in life are just to teach each other how to do things and what not to do. We say, "I'm not going. I saw you do that, and I'm not going to do that. Thanks." We all learn from each other. If you're not learning from the person you're with, your relationship is being irreparably damaged. You say, "I forgive myself for forgetting that I am also part of God, of life. And I forgive myself for forgetting that everyone else is also, and the permission I give to them to do what they want in their ten percent level, I take to myself. I'm staying out of yours, and you stay out of mine."

And in that three percent level, where we meet and work together, we're going to cooperate at such a high rate that just three percent of the time is going to take care of the ninety-seven percent of the time when we're not together—because we do it effectively, efficiently, and lovingly. And when somebody makes a mistake you say, "Forget it, let's go on." What if they make the same mistake twice? You say, "Hey, watch what you're doing because you're making the same mistake twice. Let me draw your eyes to this mistake. Do you see it? I don't have to tell you anymore, because you can see it. Do you know how to correct it? If you don't, I'll show you how."

There's never a good enough reason to withdraw your loving—never. There are a lot of reasons why you don't want to participate, and that's fine, but when you withdraw your loving from somebody out there you have to withdraw it from that place inside if you where they are also. That's killing you. You're being a real nasty person to yourself. Don't do that. Find what was really great about them, and put that in that place. You don't have to see them again, but when they come up in your mind, have that place that has loving, happiness, and okay-ness with it. Be smart in your inner life—really smart. This one out here is illusionary. God only knows what's going to go on out here.

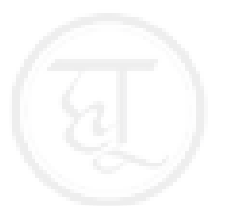

We can't get the truth out of this outer world. Somebody says that this stone is worth five dollars, and another one says it's worth five hundred, and they're both experts. What do you do? Keep the stone, sell it to the highest bidder, or do whatever you see fit. Do what you please in your ten percent. What pleases you, pleases me. If you do what's best for you at any given time, I don't care how bad it looks. If that's the best you can do, that pleases me because you're doing it. You're going to learn and grow, and you're going to please other people.

Keep the loving going. Loving is a state of forgiveness and openness. When I told you about my dog Annie, if that disturbed you, forgive me inside of you for the disturbance, and make that something that we all just came up through together. My intent was to share with you how to do a progression emotionally, because I can't go back and change what my dog did. That's done. But I can change inside of me. And there is no need for me to go to my dog to tell her how bad she is, or to go after people in my house for not having done what they could have done. I can do a lot of blame here, all vindictively righteous and true. But it's wrong in terms of life and the spirit of who we are. Come back inside, and just put the loving there with people. And if you don't know somebody, that's no reason not to be loving. You're just not going to just put it out there; you're going to keep it inside if you. When the two of you connect, then you extend it. And when they leave, pull it back. Put it out and pull it back. If you leave it out there somebody's going to blunder in and hurt it. Keep your heart back where it belongs. Keep your eyes on what you're doing. Keep your thoughts on where you want to go.

BARUCH BASHAN

Do you want to be allowed the privilege of correcting your course whenever you feel it's necessary? Then you've got to give that same privilege to everybody else. Do you know what you have to do as one of the first prerequisites of allowing them that? Forget and forgive what's happened, or else you have an irreparable relationship. The first step in mental health is to allow forgiveness for your dumbness and possibly somebody else's.

Spirit's Ever-Loving Guidance

by John Morton, DSS

It takes great attunement for us to be aware that Spirit's guidance is ever-present. Even with the awareness that there is this tremendous truth, a revelation in our midst, it takes great strength and courage to be willing to move forward with that truth and follow Spirit's ever-loving guidance. Spirit's guidance leads us directly and completely, always in all ways. Nothing is withheld. There is no againstness in how the Spirit guides us.

Eventually, this world is not meant to deliver the full prize that is in store with the Spirit. Sometimes people interpret that if we focus our life toward the world to come by aligning into the Spirit and letting go of our ways in the world, we're renouncing or condemning what goes on in this world. But this world is very important.

We come into this world on terms of harmony and balance so that eventually we learn to love what is in this world. It doesn't work to spurn it or curse it. If we want to move forward and progress spiritually, then we come into a view of the world as a beautiful place that we will leave eventually. While we're here, we are learning to love it all the way God loves it all.

Making Choices for the Highest Good

More and more we learn to make decisions such that they're inclusive of the highest good of all concerned. Ultimately, out of God come all things. God's view would be, "I love all of the creation. There's no part of the creation I do not love." So if you look at an impulse, it's often a conditional, temporary movement, a response that we're aware of that in some way is based upon a limited view or a limited occurrence. So before making a decision, consider "How would this choice impact my life?"

There's a place inside that we refer to as the spiritual heart. I find it's away from the world view, away from the opinions of others. It's a place inside, the Spirit within, and it has your best interests in mind and also everybody else's best interests.

The practicality is you're in charge of your best interest. Everybody else is in charge of theirs. So you're not responsible to manage anyone else's choices for them. You can come to that place within that knows and loves everybody. I find that it's a silent, quiet place inside. It's not a pushy, demanding place. Spirit is gentle and gradual. So if you find that you're following an energy that feels pushy, tight-fisted, tense, or with a sense of urgency, that's not coming out of Spirit. There's no rush and no urgency in the Spirit.

With some decisions, it may be best to take your time, especially when people are clamoring for you to, "Come on!" or "Hurry up!" At those times, it may actually be better to get out of that situation and observe. If others are demanding and urging something from you, it can feel rather magnetic or compelling. When someone is yelling at you or putting intense energy towards you, you may find it difficult to stay neutral and still. Yet, it's important at those times to move into the quiet and silence so you can listen to the wisdom from the Spirit within.

When you're acting in your wisdom, you'll find there is no real pressure. Spirit works out of freedom. So when Spirit presents you a choice, it's not presented with an "Or else" or a sense of threat. The Spirit doesn't work in that way. It works as a gentle invitation, "Here you go, my Beloved." That's a way I know the Spirit inside.

Worldly Conditions and the Light

Many of the conditions we're dealing with are self-imposed. We have our own disturbance field that confronts us, our own thoughts that protest and react. We can get out of balance because of how we've been reacting or what we're creating in our response field. This is where it takes discipline to quiet ourselves, to hold a positive focus as best we can.

Sometimes we need to remove ourselves from outer conditions that are difficult and see if we can find a way of managing our life so we're minimizing the negativity. Who we're around, what we associate with, and what we choose all contribute to whether our life is full of light or it's constantly being tested and barged by another round of difficulties. Consider that every challenge is for our learning, upliftment and growth. Every difficulty is a creation from God for our soul's progression.

The mind and the emotions, the body, the sense level, and the psychic level are very much subject to the conditions around us. The movements that are coursing from within, the atmosphere around us, and the environment in which we're all living affect us, too. We're all sentient beings which means that we're alive and we're receptive. We're also transmitting. We're putting out our intentionality, our response, and our consciousness. We are also receiving what's in the field of our attention, from within as well as from around us the world.

In MSIA, one of the attunements that we teach is the Light. That's a resting point. Why would the Light be a place of rest and a refuge from challenges of the world? Because the Light holds a protection, the Light that's the whole Spirit. The Light is not something that would be conditioned by deception, negativity, or againstness. The Light only loves. The Light also clarifies, helping us move forward with choices for our highest good and the highest good of all concerned.

In this world, we're not immune or exempt from the negative energies. So we need to deal with them. Part of how we can deal with them is to surround, fill and protect ourselves with the Light. And then hold up that Light consciousness so we sustain it.

By calling forward the Light, we come into this presence of the Spirit where we're sheltered and safe. We come into the inner calling through Spirit and experience that inner calm. There's no disturbance in the Spirit. It can't get in. It can't make the trip. That's soul awareness. That's spiritual awareness. That's knowing ourselves as one with God.

If we want to move forward and progress spiritually, then we come into a view of the world as a beautiful place that we will leave eventually. While we're here, we are learning to love it all the way God loves it all.

So if you find that you're following an energy that feels pushy, tight-fisted, tense, or with a sense of urgency, that's not coming out of Spirit. There's no rush and no urgency in the Spirit.

Spirit's Ever-Loving Guidance

by John Morton, DSS

(Continuing)

Consider that the Light is the highest radiant energy available to each and every one of us, however that applies directly. In the intentionality to call in that highest light consciousness, there are a lot of ways to refer to it. I like to remind people that it really is about the intentionality rather than how you say it. Was your intention to be clear, honest and upright and to do the best you can? Those kinds of intentions work, and they work in relation to the consciousness of the Light.

When you're aware that you're in some way compromised, you're in a reactive state, emotionally or mentally, there's disturbance in the body, or there are reactions like upset and violence, call yourself forward to the Light. Have the wit to do that. Also, do it as a sustaining, ongoing action.

Consider that the Light is the highest radiant energy available to each and every one of us, however that applies directly. In the intentionality to call in that highest light consciousness, there are a lot of ways to refer to it. I like to remind people that it really is about the intentionality rather than how you say it. Was your intention to be clear, honest and upright and to do the best you can? Those kinds of intentions work, and they work in relation to the consciousness of the Light.

The moment our eyes open when we awaken, the moment our sense field opens, the barrage of this world is on. So first find the inner calm. Find the place inside that's at peace with whatever is going on. There are many ways to deal with the conditions of this world. But first move to that place of peace and calm within. Much of what we do in MSIA is to teach how to build up a light field, a resonant spiritual nature that's your true nature. We teach this as a practice, a spiritual practice.

Divine Light of Protection

Calling forward the Light serves to bring in spiritual assistance and raise our awareness of the spiritual assistance already present. That assistance works through the Light in many forms and many ways, above and beyond our personal nature. Calling ourselves forward into the Light opens us up to realizing our God nature, the greater nature of who we are that is beyond our personal self. So by employing the light consciousness, the intentionality of the Light that serves the highest good of all concerned, we bring about a natural protection from Spirit.

Be conscious of the spiritual protection present and available. When you consciously invoke the Light for yourself, you can experience that protection. You can experience that the Light fills, surrounds and protects you completely. The Light has a way of overflowing past your limitations and actually becoming a tour de force of the Light simply because you asked. The Light starts doing things that in your ability, or maybe it would be called your limitation, you would say, "I couldn't do that" or "I didn't do that. The Light did that."

Maybe you perceive a person or situation as the Light because what you wanted became manifest. Often the way I experience it is that something occurred that's greater than anything I imagined. Yet, I know it is what I was asking in my heart of hearts. My experience resonates within me with what it is the truth. That is a quality of the Light.

The Light penetrates and permeates all things, even whatever would deny it, resist it or fight with it. The Light doesn't violate. It just penetrates. It is an unstoppable, always loving force. In the physical reality, it's like being in a dark room with light surrounding outside. When there is an opening, does the darkness penetrate the light? Or does the light penetrate the darkness?

My experience is the Light comes in and penetrates the darkness. If there are shadows remaining, perhaps that reflects our resistance. Maybe we're holding on and not allowing that light consciousness to come in as fully as it can.

The most important thing you can do inside yourself is build up within what resonates as light and love. The Light is energy that cares and has compassion. It's energy that has understanding and acceptance for all. Build it up by calling yourself forward into the Light and allowing it to come in as much as Spirit will allow.

The Spirit has a child-like nature. It's pure and playful and has a delight in laughter and joy. These are qualities of our true nature. It's important to realize we can still be of that nature and express that nature while we're in the midst of any challenge or condition in this world.

Moving Forward in Faith and Trust

Remember that we're all in a process of clearing and balancing ourselves. It takes willingness and endurance to hold that focus and trust that God is to whom we are dedicating our life. That often translates into taking care of yourself first. Then do what you can to assist others, but don't hurt yourself and don't hurt others. These are the ground rules we refer to over and over in MSIA. The other ground rule is, "Use everything for your learning, upliftment and growth."

In the book Spiritual Warrior, John-Roger reminded us not to ask to control the world but to accept and seek inner guidance so we can respond in ways that are aligned with Spirit's intentions. Spiritual Warriors know that the fears, aggravations and confusions of life aren't accidental. For our soul's progression, we can take advantage of the particular opportunities that each of those experiences have to offer. We always have opportunities to learn, grow and share. John-Roger said that life is not a matter of avoiding the tough lessons but extracting all we can from them for the advancement of our spiritual selves.

Everything can be transformed for our benefit and the greater good. That's a choice we all have. It's an awareness that constantly uses whatever's in our field of attention. So if it's disturbance, consider how you can use that disturbance in your life. It may be, "I'm learning greater patience. I'm learning to be stronger, and I'm learning to withstand this ten more seconds before I scream." John-Roger has referred to it as "minimizing the down time." So if you're in contraction or a reactive state, stop it sooner. Better yet, stop it now. Do what you need to do to lift yourself and move forward in the Light.

There is always the opportunity to come into more direct awareness of the Spirit within. Remind yourself that you are surrounded, protected and filled in the Light that is the Christ, the Light of the Holy Spirit, the consciousness that is the truth and the way. Ask for all that is taking place to be for the highest good of all concerned. In your awareness of your body, be at ease. If there is tension, if there is some form of tiredness, allow yourself to become relaxed.

Breathe in the Spirit and let go of whatever may be troubling you. Let the Light of the Holy Spirit assist you so you are free to be more conscious of the spiritual guidance present within. Be grateful for the divine light that is always present, surrounding, filling and protecting you. And be open to Spirit's ever-loving, ever-present guidance, coming forward in perfect ways and perfect timing for each and every one of us for the highest progression of our souls.

Bring the Magic of the Traveler to Children You Love

A children's book blessed & charged by John-Roger

Book Signing in LA Saturday, Oct 12, 2013 2:30 – 4pm

There will be a special kid-focused book signing at the Mystic Journey Bookstore
in their new, spacious location:

1624 Abbot Kinney Blvd
Venice, CA

John Morton
is scheduled to participate
(health & schedule permitting).

J-R has been invited.

We have a wealth of materials that support us adults in our experience of the Traveler and our teachings. Now we have something to follow Soul Flight for our children – and any child who would enjoy fun, fantastical adventures and the wisdom of the ages.

Golden Voyages is a wonderful read-along-with-your-kids book. It introduces young Tahir and Adara, and their pup Skipper, who embark on magical adventures to ancient lands where they encounter teachers of timeless truths. With them, children discover the mysterious Captain with his heart-melting smile and join in as he guides the kids on their quest to become Wisdom Keepers.

What is the secret of the Captain's mystical white owl with the golden eyes? Where did they come from? Where do they go? And how can their golden sailing vessel whisk Tahir, Adara and Skipper away through time and space? These are just some of the things you and your children will explore.

Wonderfully illustrated, Golden Voyages can be enjoyed by children of almost any age.

If you have been looking for a unique and fun approach to introducing wisdom teachings to children you care about, get a copy of Golden Voyages from the MSIA store, Amazon, or ask for it at your favorite bookstore.

Golden Voyages is an enchanting tale with a lovely attunement of the traveler consciousness

– John Morton

Golden Voyages 'lit up' my imagination, and I experienced sweet delight in Spiritual adventure. I read it in one sitting, and was immersed, like the children in the story, in the discovery of my love for God, and all of the Travelers and their wisdom once again. My heart was so refreshed in simple joy and innocence. ... For children of all ages.

– Leigh Taylor-Young Morton

Golden Voyages was written by Elizabeth Spanton, with Laren Bright, and illustrated by Faern Montgomery. If you're in the Los Angeles area, Elizabeth leads the children's class I Am a Wisdom Keeper at 2101 Wilshire Blvd, Santa Monica. It's the First Sunday of each month, 10 am -12 noon, and it's free for children of all ages.

A MAGI'S JOURNEY OF FAITH

BY ETERNITY S. WAULS

Recently I was having a conversation with a Buddhist friend of mine who is aware of the diversity in my background and my current spiritual unfolding.

He asked me, "How does all that work for you, touching base with different spiritual traditions and practices?" I went on to explain and give examples of how I have been blessed, enriched and gained benefits from each community or tradition I've been associated with because I've always walked in love and therefore received love. Also, at the heart and should of my being, I know and have experienced the oneness of the Lord our God. You may call this essence and energy by a different term, I call it God. Form, tradition and practice are secondary and love is primary.

In December, 2011, I served as a Magi by traveling from the state of Texas to the state of California to present my gift to the Christ. I brought forth the gift of dance and presented it to the spirit, heart and soul of the peoples of MSIA. My journey required tremendous faith because when I started out from El Paso, Texas on my camel (the bus), I had no idea how I would get from point A to point B to present my gift. As divine will would have it, the person who picked me up at the bus terminal (a Buddhist), surprised me by saying, "Julie is out of town and she left her car and keys for you to use until she returns next week." Halleluia. I had not asked of this and was not expecting it. I can freely get from Los Angeles to Santa Monica as many times as I need to!

Another faith challenge involved finding an altar table upon which to present my gift. I was not able to bring a table on the thirteen hour bus ride with all my other hand-held paraphernalia of pillows, purse, lunch container, jacket, and two overly stuffed suitcases in the bus luggage compartment.

I had tried so hard before I left El Paso to cram everything I needed into one suitcase, but to no avail. Finally, I was able to get all the elements and components necessary for the altar and presentation of my gift into one suitcase, and my clothing with other necessities into a second suitcase. Be aware that the first suitcase had to be packed very, very carefully and lovingly so as to protect the sacred items from breakage and damage in the luggage compartment of the bus with piles of other luggage and boxes stacked on top and all around it by the luggage handlers. I knew that if I made the request, "Please handle my two pieces of luggage with extra special care," I would have been laughed at and possibly told, "Lady, you need to get to Los Angeles by some other means of transportation."

Back to the actual altar table: if I had been able to drive as I had done in the past, I would have put a table in the back of my car and there would have been no problem. But remember, this whole adventure and journey is being orchestrated by divine will; therefore the mode of transportation is by bus.

Once I arrived at my location in Los Angeles and got settled in, by faith, I began walking through other rooms in the house and looking for what might be available to use as an altar. Upon entering the second bedroom my eyes connect with a small low table. "Oh that's it, the altar table." I go to pick it up, it's light weight, and surprise, surprise, I turn it upside down and the legs screw off so I can easily place it in the truck of the car. Of course by now, I am fighting back the tears as I drop to my knees in praise and thanksgiving to God for all that is being provided.

Later I see two large vases of beautiful red and white flowers on the dining room table. I ask, "Can I use one of the vases?" The response is, "Sure go ahead. They were left over from an event we had a week ago and they are just sitting there. It's surprising how well they have held up." Halleluia, another surprise because I was planning to purchase real or artificial flowers for the altar.

During the Christmas Eve webcast I experienced the joy of the lord as I, a child of God, presented my humble gift of dance to the Christ—the hearts, minds and souls that make up church of MSIA.

Whenever I have danced in years past and even most recently, it has always been with the intention of ministering to the heart, mind and soul of the people of God. I never dance to merely entertain people although that may be a secondary benefit.

To sum it all up, the essence of this magi's journey of faith is that God provides all that is necessary to fulfill the divine will when the servant is truly willing and the intention is pure. The heart's desire was and is for everyone to be blessed. What a wonderful blessing I received in the presence of two or more gathered together. Halleluia!

Open your Home, Open your Heart

by Kevin Masterson

When I was at the premiere of the Mystical Traveler movie, the clips from Lake Arrowhead retreats brought back some of my best memories of childhood. My family has an 800 square foot summer cottage on Pymatuning Lake in Pennsylvania. When I was a child, we often had lots of my very large, extended family come to visit and enjoy the lake, barbeques and visiting with us. Although our cottage was small, we made room for everyone and enjoyed the closeness. There was so much love and a sense of a bigger family present at those times. I saw that same feeling in the footage from Lake Arrowhead.

That sense of community was a major attraction to me when I started studying in MSIA in 1988. There was so much loving and acceptance present. Over the years as technology has dramatically changed the way that we live and as we have gotten busier and busier saving time, I have felt a loss of those good old days and the quality of that human connection. I've often heard people including myself voice a longing for a return of that energy, the energy that I experienced so profoundly when I first took Insight. I have come to realize that the best first step to bringing that energy back begins with me.

In the past three years since I purchased my condo in Toluca Lake, I have had this calling inwardly to host out-of-towners who attend MSIA's annual conference. I am very close to the Sheraton and my place is fairly large. I realized I could make it very easy for others to get to Conference that might not otherwise be able to do so. This year I am thankful to say that I heeded that call.

Penelope Bright spoke at the Minister's Meeting in May and talked about making people feel welcome. I had three guests in my home for Conference. Although I didn't attend the workshop, I got my guests' enthusiasm each day when they returned. We shared meals and got to know each other better both as students of MSIA and as human beings. It was like being at a retreat. On the 4th of July, I had a barbeque and invited some non-MSIA friends over to watch the fireworks with me and my guests. One of the best moments was when I walked in and saw everyone interacting with each other and having a great time. That was the open loving heart of Insight I had been searching for. It was present in my home. It was the greatest house blessing I could ever have received.

I was so inspired by what was happening in my home, I remembered to practice something I learned in Insight twenty-five years ago: Get out of my comfort zone and interact with others I normally might not interact with. I sat next to people I didn't know at meals and in the seminars. I also circulated and shared myself authentically with as many people as I could. I chose to create the experience I had been longing for.

When I shared with others that I was hosting people in my home, several people told me that they had thought of hosting, but had not done it for various reasons. After speaking with me and seeing the blessings I had received, they all seemed to wish they had hosted as well. I can't encourage others enough to step outside your comfort zone and open your home and your heart to someone whether it is for Conference or any MSIA event anywhere. The Blessing Already Are. We just need to be aware of them.

Early Days of J-R in Miami & New York

—COMPILED BY CAROL JONES

RAMA FOX SHARES ABOUT J-R IN MIAMI

His patience seemed infinite. He didn't ask us to believe anything. Rather, he generously offered pearls of wisdom, as our hungry, grateful hearts, minds and souls drank in what we could. Before he left, J-R asked that I start leading the seminars held in my home.

J-R's seminars came to Miami in 1969 via audio cassette tapes, recorded by Rubin Perez (later known as Reuben Paris). Reuben lived in LA and was among the initial participants with J-R in Santa Barbara. Reuben sent copies of the tapes to his sister, Renie Perez, in Miami. Subsequently, J-R gave Renie permission to play the seminars for others, and that's when the Miami MSIA seminars began.

When we started holding seminars, my home became the MSIA Miami Light House. Everyone knew where the key was, and whether I was home or not, they were welcome to come and hang out. Many nights I'd come home to find the lights on, music playing, a fire in the fireplace, and people sitting together talking. I loved the feeling of family. It was magical for us all. It was as if we had together entered a whole and distinctly different mystical, enchanted reality. Before long, we were requesting better quality tapes, so J-R's staff started recording him with quality recording equipment and making them available to us at a modest cost.

A couple of times a year, J-R would come to Miami. He'd show us how to do things like the Water and Flame Meditations or how to program the Universal Mind. Or he'd show us how to see auras, along with sharing with us the mysteries of Soul Transcendence and practical spirituality. It was extraordinary what happened in that house. After going with J-R on a trip to India in 1975, I moved to L.A. A lot of the people that came to those early seminars are still beloved friends and in MSIA today. My heart swells in gratitude for the privilege of being able to have had those seminars in my home and spending so much time with J-R.

SPIRIT BRINGS IN THE PEOPLE IF YOU CREATE THE SPACE—LAREN BRIGHT

It still baffles me why more people don't attend home/tape seminars. Most folks I know want to be around the Traveler more. Tape seminars are the way to do it. Attending seminars has transformed over the years from something I thought I should be doing in Miami to something I thought I was obligated to be doing, to something I look forward to doing. We keep doing them at our home because they offer such an easy way to be in touch with friends and the Traveler, release "stuff" we may have picked up over the week, and generally just chill in the Light. And, of course, we're getting rich off the $3 donation we ask, for the $4 worth of tea & cookies we provide.

CELENE ALEXANDRA SHARES HER MEMORIES

MSIA in the Miami area, was already thriving when I came into the Movement in 1974. Howard Lawrence, Annette Lawrence, Lauren & Penelope Bright, Daniel Safron, Marjorie Eaton, Rama Fox, David Klein, and more were already studying the teachings. They (early MSIAers) really set the pace for MSIA in Miami. They were a powerhouse.

So I got to meet J-R and attend all of the festivities (one was a sit down lunch at Rama Fox's home) which was always filled with laughter and good food. Of course, the J-R live seminar was thrilling. The room overflowed with people on folding chairs set up in rows, and people were standing on both sides of the room as well as in the back. Even with the fans going full speed, it was pretty warm and everyone seemed to sparkle. The room was alive with energy. Everything was brighter – the colors and the smells, plus the air (with J-R), was like electricity. It began with Michael Sun singing, then J-R's talk. After J-R was done, he graciously allowed each person who approached him to greet him. He met us with his big, beautiful smile and with tender, loving care – talking with each of us personally, taking time to answer any individual questions. I do not remember what J-R said to me, I only knew, with a certainty, that he was "the one" and that I found my life in that moment.

The rest is history. Thank you Nancy Alburn (Crystal) wherever you are. Thank you John David because I remember he was very instrumental in getting Insight to Miami in 78 or 79. We were all bright-eyed & bushy-tailed with excitement – and Insight also proved to be even better than expected. In looking back, I guess we were spoiled. J-R and his staff would visit us three or four times a year. We were one blessed group, and I was one blessed person.

AWAKENING TO THE TRAVELER—DANNY SAFRON

Something kept drawing me back until J-R came to town in April of that year. It was on a Friday night a Rama Fox's house in Coconut Grove that I first saw him. I was blown away by the energy and I'm sure I received the Darshan/twaji. I asked one of his staff members afterwards how I can feel this way at home seminars. He said you might want to lie down and go out with the energy. Subsequently I did lie down at taped seminars which I started attending weekly. I would go "unconscious" and wake up when J-R said "Baruch Bashan." It was like I had a spiritual shower. (Forty year later I often still feel that sensation after our weekly home seminars.) I got on Discourses in June of that year, and was ordained, had a Light Study, aura balance and polarity balance when the staff returned in November. Full immersion! In addition, the Traveler's spiritual wisdoms and keys to everyday living started making so much sense to me too!

When I got there, my good friend Susan took one look at me and said "Danny, have you been tripping?!" I said, "No, I've never tripped. I just met John-Roger." At that moment I felt the Light come in strongly. Susan must have gotten it too, as she accompanied me to J-R's next live seminar later in the week at a Unity Church. After that, she went to several home seminars with me. A few years ago I saw her for the first time in about twenty years and experienced the Light with her. I'm not sure what her spiritual persuasion is now, but I'm reminded that the Light's in everyone, and that the Traveler touches to people who are open to it even if they don't know it consciously. I am very grateful for the magnificently uplifting Traveler Consciousness that J-R and John have continually and amazingly delivered to us and others for so many years, and how they've reminded us that we are blessed, we are loved, because we are divine!

MANNY STISSI GIVES AWAY THE SECRET YEAR OF NEW YORK'S CHRISTENING!

Terry Maureau came to NY from Miami, Florida, and played the first tape seminar in Nov. 1973. The first New York seminar was "The Light, the Truth and the Way". Terry went to Rama Fox's seminars in Coconut Grove, Florida often and brought back a bunch of tapes. Terry was the first area rep and the first seminar was at Terry's home. Peter Meilen started the Light Center on Canal St. in China Town where people lived and studied the teachings. Some dear folks also came up from Philly to help us get started.

CONGRATULATIONS INSIGHT UNIVERSITY

In addition to the doctoral program we have been offering since Fall of 2011 we'd like to tell you about a most exciting development!

Insight University recently won a contract to present our unique 2-day Emerging Leaders Workshop, "Letting Wisdom Lead." It was the cornerstone of Kellogg Southern Africa Leadership (KSAL) program's Capstone Forum. KSAL is a program sponsored by W.K. Kellogg Foundation and administered by FHI 360.

Over 150 leaders from a variety of Southern Africa countries gathered in Johannesburg to learn practical tools for self and organizational leadership. The focus of this workshop is about WHO you ARE as a leader, not what you DO as a leader.

Our team, comprised of University President Gregory Stebbins, Ed.D. and faculty members Barney Singer, J.D. and Lesley Clarke, Ph.D. were joined by Susan Kroening from Perth, Australia. We found the participants to be full of heart, and hungry for their next steps, both personally and professionally. Here's a sample of what students said about the program:

"The Wisdom Model has re-awakened my thinking and the way I am going to do things from this moment. I have a better idea of how I am going to incorporate the model in teaching and dealing with challenges in assisting my family, the community, colleagues at work and my students. The model is a powerful development tool..."

~ Naomi Moswete, Ph.D., Senior Lecturer, Botswana

"I have been transformed during the workshop. I heard new leadership values and ways to increase my confidence as a leader. I have realized that I am responsible for my actions, behavior and destiny as a teacher. I now know that having wisdom as a leader is a key for success. This was an awesome experience."

~ Memory Chirongwe, Zimbabwe

"The Wisdom presentation was an eye-opener to me. I realized areas where I did not know I had strength in and those that I did not know I was weak in. Knowing this helps as I will be able to work on my weaknesses and capitalize on my strengths."

~ Liphie Pereira, Ph.D., Lecturer, Swaziland

And from FHI 360, the NGO managing the program for W.K. Kellogg Foundation, came this accolade:

"I was also explaining to the rest of our KSAL staff here in Washington DC that you had a quite a tough job to facilitate/navigate/troubleshoot 150 individuals who don't exactly speak the same language! Well done!!!"

A testament to the power of our work is that we have been approached by a faculty member of the Rhodes Business School in South Africa to discuss offering our courses through that school. Additionally two people from Botswana have approached us to consider creating a Leadership Academy in that country.

Because several of the students asked how they could enroll in our doctoral program, we have initiated a focused effort to raise funds in support of covering tuition, study materials, and travel to the US for the 4-day classroom sessions held each semester. The projected cost is approximately $55,000 per student. We would welcome introductions to organizations interested in improving leadership in Africa, as well as individual donations of any size to further their growth.

How Does This Benefit You?

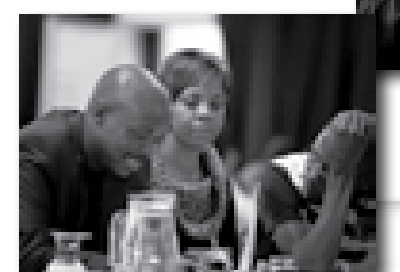

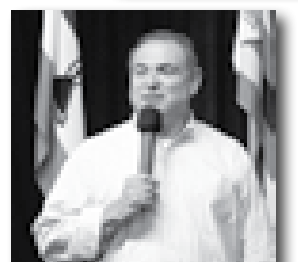

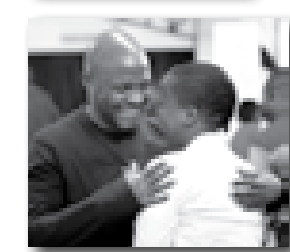

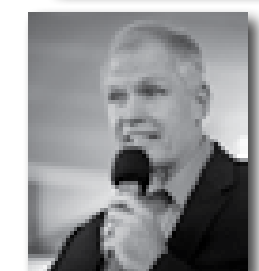

Insight University is on the leading edge of developing and presenting classes and seminars in both our doctoral and public/continuing education programs. Our heart-centered focus is helping to energize awareness that there is more to being a successful leader than just adding to the bottom line. Our work is truly transformational and is creating leaders that not only can make, but are making, a positive difference in the world.

INSIGHT UNIVERSITY

– PROBABLY NOT WHAT YOU THINK IT IS

Gregory Stebbins
Robert Waterman

BY LAREN BRIGHT

In 1972, J-R had a conversation with Greg Stebbins that planted the seed for Insight University. Forty years later, that seed has sprouted.

Around MSIA, when we hear “Insight,” we generally think of Insight Seminars. And that’s with good reason. Since 1978 Insight Seminars has been doing its outstanding work, largely with public seminars for children, teens and adults. Over the years, Insight Seminars has been through several behind the scenes changes, though the power of the seminars has always been the same.

One of those changes occurred in 2008 when Greg Stebbins and Robert Waterman, with the agreement of John-Roger, finally got together and set out to create Insight University. In January of 2011 Insight U and Insight Seminars merged and had two distinct divisions: The Degree Granting Division and the Continuing Education Division.

More recently, for a number of technical and practical reasons, the two divisions were separated into their own unique organizations. Insight Seminars continues on its path of transformational programs for the public, and Insight University became focused solely on its work in transformational leadership and transformational education.

The creation of the university is largely the story of Greg and Robert, both of whom got to this point from similar but distinctly different routes. Greg’s part of the path began in 1972 having several conversations with J-R. Their conversations were about education: what it was doing and where it was headed. A few years later, in a chance encounter with J-R at Hu-Man Texaco (see Jsu Garcia’s movie Mystical Traveler for reference), J-R suggested that Greg get a doctoral degree. While not high on his to-do list, having just completed his Masters from USC, Greg nonetheless proceeded to earn his Ed. D. from Pepperdine.

Robert had met J-R in Santa Barbara when J-R was just starting out talks with Muriel Engel, Jack Reed, and others. This was before MSIA formally began. Robert had been studying at UCSB, spending half his time reading text books and the other half reading metaphysical books. He was interested in transformational education, but little was available on the subject. When he met J-R he soon realized that here was someone actually practicing transformational education. As Robert puts it, students in J-R’s classes were spiritual scientists. They would be experiencing things a particular way going into a class or meditation, and experiencing it differently when they came out. It was revelatory for Robert.

Robert ended up at Quimby Center in New Mexico, which eventually led him to establish Southwestern College. Throughout the years that Southwestern College was becoming established, Robert kept close contact with J-R, getting his advice at key points in the organization’s development.

In the mid 90’s and early in the 2000’s, several events conspired to start drawing the two men toward a nexus point. Greg, whom J-R had asked to be the first administrator of Koh-I-Nor University, which later became USM. Greg also served as treasurer of the school for many years both before and after it had become USM.

In 2007 Candace suggested to Greg that Insight create a University. Receiving J-R’s go-ahead, as well as his agreement to be the University’s Chancellor, Greg began investigating what was necessary. His vision was founded on an accredited university that would be recognized in the mainstream academic world. The course work he designed was a Master’s degree in Transformational Leadership. At around that time California dismantled the commission that authorized schools into existence. So Greg turned his attention to nearby states. For a number of reasons, New Mexico seemed like the best bet.

Meanwhile, in New Mexico, Robert Waterman had become President Emeritus of Southwestern College, but was not involved in the actual administration of the school. He, too, had developed a course curriculum, in his case a doctoral program in Transformational Leadership for that school, but they decided they were not interested in going in that direction. As things began to jell with Greg, he remembered that J-R had introduced him to Robert in the 70’s, so he called Robert. He said, “Do you remember J-R introducing us in the 70’s, saying we should get to know each other?” Robert said, “No.”

Undaunted, Greg proceeded to tell Robert about his vision for Insight University and it piqued Robert’s interest. They realized that the curriculum Robert had developed for Southwestern was a perfect fit for the program and Insight University. And that’s when the work began.

Robert had to develop his curriculum for an on-line learning structure. At first he was skeptical, but as he became more immersed in the technology, he began to see exciting possibilities.

Greg started going through the long process of qualifying for accreditation. The state of New Mexico granted them a license to do business as a university, but state law required that they be accredited within 3 years. Twenty seven hundred pages of documentation later, Insight University is preparing to submit its application in early 2014, almost a year ahead of schedule.

In the meantime, Robert and Greg attracted a faculty of people holding doctoral degrees in various disciplines, all dedicated to living what they were teaching – which was an absolute requirement for involvement with the school. As the first cohort of students plunged into the work, they found the curriculum transforming itself. In order to be truly transformational, the organization had to practice what it taught.

There is a phenomenon in academia called “ABD” -- All But Dissertation. For numerous reasons, about 40% of doctoral students complete all the course work, but never complete the dissertation. Greg and Robert were determined that Insight University would be different. So, at one of the first faculty meetings, Robert made the statement that, “Everybody is going to graduate.” One of the prospective faculty said, “Well, isn’t that a little aggressive?” Robert didn’t even blink. He looked at the person and said, “Anything less than that would not be transformational, now would it?”

Insight University’s program takes place over two calendar years instead of three, because students continue with one additional semester each summer, instead of taking summers off. Students are loving it. It’s challenging, but the rewards far outweigh the challenges.

While the doctoral program was moving forward, it became apparent that the university needed a vehicle to reach into the broader population. Doctoral programs, by definition, are small, generally fewer than 15 people in a cohort, partly because of the very hands-on relationship of faculty to students. So a program for Emerging Leaders called “Letting Wisdom Lead” was created for people who wanted to become more effective in the leadership of their companies, NGO’s, non-profits, or just to be better leaders in their lives.

As Greg points out, most leadership development programs focus on what you do as a leader. They do not focus on who you are as a leader. But who you are is an extremely critical process in becoming an effective leader. It is really understanding all of your internal wiring and what it does. To try and sell self-awareness to leaders is a difficult thing. But if you say you want to really enhance your wisdom as a leader, people can line up with that.

This two-day program explores with participants the critical pieces of becoming a wise leader, which is to really understand how much of leadership is done from the head, the heart, or even a hunch (intuition). That’s the foundation of the program.

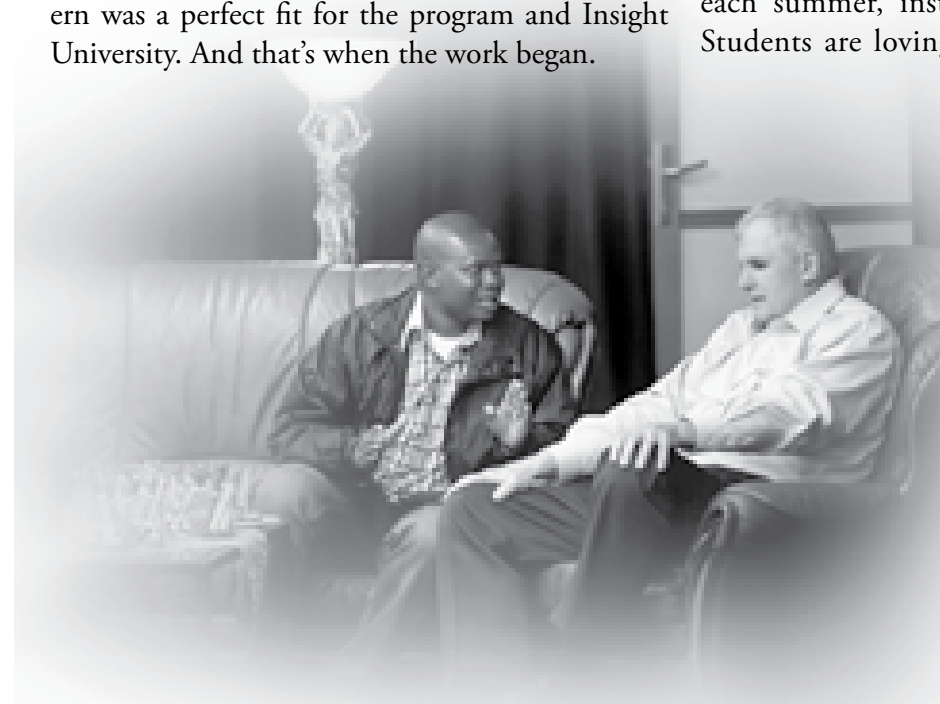

It features what’s called the Wisdom Development Process, which shows you the process through which Wisdom is developed. All of that takes place on Day 1 of the two-day workshop. On Day 2, it explores the Leadership Development Profile, a highly sophisticated “360-degree leadership assessment.” In preparation for the workshop, participants have a number of their colleagues fill out a detailed questionnaire about the how they perceive the participant’s strengths and weaknesses. Participants also complete a questionnaire about the way they see themselves. The company that offers this tool integrates the data from the questionnaires into a model participants can use to see they see themselves, compared to how others perceive them. The results are profound. This 360 tool is employed help people use the Wisdom Development process and enhance their development as leaders.

As a result, participants understand what they’re good at in terms of competencies and where they need to work on their competencies. They begin to understand where they react to things in the work environment and how that’s really a stepping stone to their own personal growth and development. Reactive patterns are not considered as negative, they are truly looked at as stepping-stones.

Over 2012, the University presented the Letting Wisdom Lead program to several small groups to refine the process, and then, just before the 2013 MSIA Conference, an unanticipated opportunity presented itself.

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation had been doing work in South Africa for leaders in several countries in the region. They were creating a Capstone Forum of a program that had been going on for 12 years. One of the University faculty got wind of it and Insight University submitted a proposal, bidding in competition with numerous other organizations, including some from South Africa. The Letting Wisdom Lead program was selected, and the University sent a team of key faculty to present the program to about 150 leaders from all over the southern part of Africa.

The results were phenomenal (and you can read about them in detail in the Inisght University ad in this issue of the New Day Herald). While they found the participants were long on heart, most were very short on financial resources. So when several who were qualified (meaning they held Masters or Doctorate degrees from accredited schools) expressed a desire to participate in the University's doctoral program, the University established the Africa Scholarship Fund to support them in making their dream a reality. The cost per student for all materials and travel to the US for the in-person sessions once a semester is estimated at $55,000 per student, and the University is seeking companies who have an interest in Africa to sponsor students. Referrals are very welcome. As Greg said, "We're really talking about transforming the consciousness of leaders on the planet. Because if we can transform leaders to be more integrated -- head, heart and hunch -- then it's likely that the organizations they run will also begin their transformation."

Today the University stands on the cusp of accreditation. Documentation is nearly done. The University is building its financial foundation as part of the requirement for receiving accreditation (they have to show they are fiscally stable to support themselves as a business for three years). Courses are complete and are continually going through transformation, as are the faculty along with the students. And the first cohort of students is currently deeply involved in writing their dissertations.

Greg and Robert are working endless hours to keep the university moving forward, while also making sure that the foundation they are building will serve those who follow them in building and transforming the school. Plans are underway to offer the previously designed Masters Degree program, and Greg Stebbins notes that he runs every key decision about the administration and curriculum of the university by J-R for his input, and that J-R has been quite hands-on at each phase of its development.

The University is actively and successfully involved in producing a generation of leaders who can demonstrate transformation and begin leading to produce transformation in the world. After all, the University's mission, as set forth by Chancellor John-Roger, remains: Insight is here to assist us in transforming ourselves into loving, so that the greater transformation of the planet to loving will take place.

There's an awful lot to do to make that a reality. Your Light for this facet of the Traveler's work is greatly appreciated.

DIRECTORY OF

“The journey of your Soul is to return to an awareness of and a oneness with God.”

MSIA

The MOVEMENT of SPIRITUAL INNER AWARENESS (MSIA) teaches Soul Transcendence, which is becoming aware of oneself as a Soul, and, more than that, as one with God. Soul Awareness Discourses are the heart of MSIA's teachings. They offer many practical keys to more successful living. Even more important, they offer keys to greater spiritual awareness and knowledge of the Soul. MSIA's approach is to present activities and techniques that direct us toward the Spirit and loving that are the essence of who we are, and to provide support for practicing those things if people choose to use them.

encing greater health, happiness, abundance, and joy. The foundation of MSIA is loving, and it is in that spirit that we invite you to participate with us in whatever way works for you. MSIA, P.O. Box 513935, L.A., CA 90051, (323) 737-4055 Have you traveled the MSIA Website yet? www.msia.org

USM

USM was founded in 1976 by John-Roger and is a private graduate school offering Master's degrees in Spiritual Psychology and Spiritual Psychology with an Emphasis in Consciousness, Health, and Healing. Known as the Worldwide Center for the Study and Practice of Spiritual Psychology, USM's mission is communicating the principles and practices of Spiritual Psychology worldwide through the process of Soul-Centered education.

Soul-Centered education recognizes spiritual reality and begins with the assertion that rather than human beings who have a soul, we are more accurately described as souls having a human experience. This assertion evokes a radical paradigm shift, which results in a psychological and educational process whose goal is to bring forth the beauty, wisdom, and compassion inherent in every human being.

This experiential educational paradigm evokes in students their own answers to the three essential questions: Who am I? Why am I here and what is my purpose? How can I make a meaningful contribution in the world?

HEARTFELT

THE HEARTFELT FOUNDATION, founded in 1979 by John-Roger, is a volunteer-driven service organization which is operated through the Church of the Movement of Spiritual Inner Awareness (MSIA), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. 100% of donations received go to those we serve. Heartfelt's mission statement is: "Changing people's lives through the healing power of heartfelt service." People and the heart are a primary focus of our work, and volunteers are the key to our success.

The Foundation's service includes assisting at-risk and in-need families, providing support and services to disadvantaged or abused children, helping the homeless and comforting the sick. Thousands of people in need have been served by our loving volunteers.

An important part of Heartfelt's work is the HeartReach Program, which reaches out with food, medicine loving and caring hearts and Light support to members of our spiritual family who are undergoing life-challenging or medical crises. As a result of the short-term support that HeartReach is able to provide, people are cared for through difficult situations.

The John-Roger Legacy Fund within MSIA ensures that the teachings of the Mystical Traveler are available for many years to those who are looking for them. The Fund's prime objective is to continue to maintain the archives of J-R's spiritual work and to share it with the world, and to support MSIA, as necessary, as a conduit to maintain the availability of the Traveler's teachings and to preserve

John-Roger's legacy.

How to Contribute to the John-Roger Legacy Fund

1. By Mail: Mail check or credit card number with dollar amount and indicate that your contribution is for the John-Roger Legacy Fund: MSIA, 3500 W. Adams Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90018

INITIATION

If you are just starting the Soul Awareness Discourses, Discourse #1 explains initiation into the Sound Current. You may choose to study the Discourses with the intention to be initiated on this path, or to simply read them as information. If you do choose to study toward initiation, the Traveler works with you more closely, and you may notice a greater spiritual awareness in your own consciousness as this work goes on.

If you are studying toward initiation, you need to write and mail a letter to the Traveler that this is your intention. If you have written and mailed your intention to the Traveler, you can apply for initiation when you have completed Discourse 24.

THE MSIA MINISTRY

The MSIA ministry is for initiates of the Traveler who are called inwardly to serve the spirit of their hearts.

Service may be in any form, from volunteering for the Church to assisting people in need or organizations that serve those people, and anything in between. The only requirement is that the ministry is active and done regularly.

MSIA ministers may perform services, like marriages, that clergy of other denominations are authorized to do as long as they comply with the laws of the locality in which they serve.

People who have received initiation into the Sound Current through the Traveler may request an Application for Ordination packet from:
Ministerial Services In Action • 3500 W. Adams Blvd. • Los Angeles, CA 90018

WRITING TO J-R & JOHN

Sometimes people reading Discourses, especially those studying toward initiation, want to write to John Morton or John-Roger. Writing often helps you let go of a troubling situation and open more to the Traveler's assistance inwardly.

As soon as you write to John Morton or John-Roger, they get the message on the spiritual levels, and they do what Spirit allows. Then, to let go of the situation in your consciousness, you burn or mail your letter. Whether you burn or mail what you wrote, you may find that you get your answers on the inner levels, sometimes very quickly. You may also experience greater calm, clarity, or peace, which can help you go through whatever challenges you face.

We suggest that you place the situation in the Light, ask for clarification during s.e.'s, dreams, etc., and then look for the answers within you. Often reading a Discourse or listening to an MSIA tape (either at home or at a seminar) will provide keys to assist you in handling your situation. You can also refer to any of the numerous books by J-R and John to find information that relates to what you are dealing with. These two have shared so much with us over the years, and we encourage you to send your letters via e-mail, using these addresses:

For John-Roger: letterj-r@msia.org
For John Morton: letterjohnmorton@msia.org

If you live in the United States and if you send your letter to J-R or John in hard copy via the mail, you need to include a self-addressed stamped envelope (SASE) if you want a reply from either of them.

Many hundreds of people write personal letters each month to J-R and John, so please note that even if you do send a letter by e-mail or if you do send in an SASE with your letter, you may not receive a response back. This does not imply that your concern is not important or that you are being ignored. There simply may be no need for a physical reply, or there may be no answer available to you at the time you write.

In addition to the e-mail addresses above, mail to John Morton or John-Roger can be sent to:

MSIA • P.O. Box 513935 • Los Angeles, CA 90051-1935

“You see, God created us and He didn’t use any junk to do it. Sometimes you want to take who you are as a creative being and make junk, thinking that’s going to be acceptable. At the level we are working in this PTS doctoral program, I want to be clear with you that it’s not. The thing we’re on the planet to learn is discipline toward God’s direction. That discipline is not a punishment. It’s joy. And it’s a real thankful thing to have.”
